

Meyer-Sponsored Olympic Hopeful Feeling Strong in World Cup

With less than 40 days until the 2022 Olympic Winter Games in Beijing, Meyer's sponsored athlete, US Cross Country Skier, Hannah Halvorsen nailed a personal best in the World Cup Sprints in Dresden, Germany. She has since been invited to compete in the prestigious International Ski Federation Tour de Ski opening in Lenzerheide, Switzerland December 27, 2021. The last two stages of the Tour de Ski will be held in Val di Fiemme, Italy. There will be six stages in the 2021/22 Tour de Ski, two fewer than last season, to accommodate the preparations for the Beijing 2022 Olympic Winter Games.

Hannah was a 2018 International World Junior Cross Country Ski Champion and a 2019 National Cross Country Ski Champion when she suffered a major setback just days away from the first race of the season. Hannah was hit by a car while crossing the street in Anchorage where she is an Alaska Pacific University Nordic Ski Center Team Member and student.

Suffering a Traumatic Brain Injury, Skull Fracture, Hematoma, Contusions, A torn MCL, torn PCL, shattered Tibia Plateau, her season was over.

After a grueling year of rehab and recovery, uncertainty and almost constant pain, Hannah competed in the World Cup in 2020 and is poised to ski her best season ever in 2021/22.

Join Team Meyer as we count down to the 2022 Olympic Winter Games beginning February 4, 2022!

How to watch:

<https://usskiandsnowboard.org/follow/cross-country>

Hannah's Instagram Page:

<https://www.instagram.com/hannah.g.halvorsen/>

Check out Hannah's recent media attention:

https://usskiandsnowboard.org/news/halvorsen-career-best-seventh-dresden-world-cup-sprint?fbclid=IwAR3qpbxLTJqQ6G2-ve0spfTVL7ble-zK2vpIliNCA_D8-J_p_mbTwPGQXqY